Index to Volume 43 (1972)

This index is composed of the following three subindexes: (1) bibliographical, (2) author, and (3) topic. Entries in the bibliographical index are numbered and have been alphabetized by the last name of the author or, in the case of multiple authors, by the last name of the senior author. Reference information includes the name(s) of the author(s), the title of the article, the month of publication, and the page on which it is found.

The author index cites the name of each author, followed by the month of publication and page(s) on which the article(s) begin.

In the topic index, each article is listed under those important topics about which the article provides information and/or data. The number or numbers included in the listing refer to the initial page of the article in which the topic is discussed.

III. Topic Index

Each topic is followed by the initial page number(s) of the article(s) in which the topic is discussed.

accuracy of motor skill ratings; 55 acquisition of motor skill, as influenced by precision of information feedback; 489 aerobic capacity, effects of alcohol on; 1 effects on numerical performance; 16 aesthetic experience, as motivation for physical activity; 148 alcohol, effects on aerobic capacity; 1 effects on heart rate; 1, 94 effects on lung ventilation; 1 effects on oxygen consumption; 1, 94 ANOVA: use in estimating generality and specificity; 494 ascetic experience, as motivation for physical activity; 148 Astrand-Ryhming test; 89 athletes, strength and isotonic edurance of elboy flexors of; 82

baseball players, body image and self-concept of; 7 basketball players, body image and self-concept of; 7 behavior and space utilization of children; 47 Bender Visual-Motor Gestalt Test; 47 bodybuilders, personality factor profiles; 142 body image of athletes; 7

C

camera synchronizer; 105
carbon dioxide production, effects of treadmill exercise on; 175 cardiorespiratory and body composition measurements of high school football players; 472 catharsis, as motivation for physical activity; 148 children, behavior and space utilization; 47 children's motor performance; 187 children with learning difficulties, response strategies in; 509 cinephotography techniques; 105 correlational methods, comparison of, reply to Schutz's critique of; 507 correlational methods, mathematical vs. empirical methodology; 501 cybernetic model; 312
cybernetic view of performance; 295

D

dehydration, effects on physical working capacity of wrestlers under competitive conditions; 416

E

electromyographic kinesiology; 39, 105 empirical methodology, use as correlational method; 501 endurance, isotonic; 82 endurance performance, reliability, individual differences and intra-variation of; 31 effects of feedback on; 39 ergometer, bicycle; 31, 89 estimation of generality and specificity, by squared correlation; 494
  by ANOVA; 494
exercise, effects on numerical performance; 16 experimenter sex, effects on children's motor performance; 187

F

factor analysis of physical fitness tests; 443 feedback, effect on endurance; 39 football players, body image and self-concept of; 7 force plates, use for long jump studies; 247

G

goal attainment process; 337
gymnasts, body image and self-concept of; 7

H

handgrip, sustained; 131 strength, as related to tonic neck reflex; 157 handgrip time, related to motivation to train; 131 heart rate, effects of alcohol on; 1, 94 palpation technique of determining; 77 training, estimation of; 77
  effects of treadmill exercise on; 175
health knowledge of young adults; 399

I

information processing; 295, 362
  analysis of inputs; 295 decision-making; 295
isometric contraction, effects of feedback on; 39

J

junior high school boys, self-concept of; 208

K

kinesiology, electromyographic; 105

L

leg power, absolute and relative, as predictors of physical performance; 468 long jump studies, use of force plates for; 247 lung ventilation, effects of alcohol on; 1 effects of treadmill exercise on; 175

M

mathematical methodology, use as correlational method; 501 mirror reversal conditions, effects on performance of motor tasks; 460 money, effects on motor learning and performance; 429 motor performance; 387
motor skill, ratings of; 55 movement analysis; 312
movement behavior research, Moving Embedded Figures Test; 479 Moving Embedded Figures Test, use in movement behavior research; 479

N

O

optimum angle of projection for racing start in swimming; 167 oxygen consumption, effects of alcohol on; 1, 94 prediction of; 89
  calculation of; 121
  effects of treadmill exercise on; 175

P

pain, tolerance of; 39 perceptual-motor skill performance, systems-analysis of; 266 performance on motor tasks under standard and mirror reversal conditions; 460 physical activity, attitude of male university students toward; 148 physical characteristics of college age women gymnasts; 226 physical education skills, integration with the concept of levers; 423 physical fitness tests, factor analysis of; 443 physical performance, as predicted by absolute and relative leg power; 468 physical working capacity and running performance for young boys; 235 praise, effects on motor learning and performance; 429 precision of information feedback, effects upon acquisition of motor skill; 489

racing start in swimming, optimum angle of projection; 167 reactive inhibition in a rotary pursuit task; 125 recovery from reactive inhibition, effects of gross motor activity on; 125 residential affiliation, as determinant of team cohesiveness; 62 respiratory quotient, calculation of; 121 response strategies in children with learning difficulties; 509 rhythm, auditory and visual perception of; 197

rotary pursuit task, reactive inhibition in; 125 running; 89
running performance and physical working capacity of young boys; 235

selection of fifteen-minutes work load on a treadmill and bicycle; 451 selection of work effort on treadmill and bicycle, physiological variables related to; 216 selft-concept of athletes; 7 of junior high school boys; 208 skill, definitions of; 266, 337 skill learning and performance; 263, 266, 295, 312, 337, 362, 394 implications for physical education; 374, 387 social reinforcement, effects on children's motor performance; 187 space utilization by children; 47 sports abilities as contributors to self-concept of junior high school boys; 208 sports interests as contributors to self-concept in junior high school boys; 208 squared correlation, use in estimating generality and specificity; 494 statistical tests, validity of; 23
of student improvement; 113 strength, isometric; 82 subject sex, effects on children's motor performance; 187 success, as detreminant of team cohesiveness; 62 swimmers, body image and self-concept of; 7 swimming, racing start in; 167

T

target device to measure speed and accuracy of open and closed environment; 239 task analysis; 362
team cohesiveness, effects of success and residential affiliation on; 62 tennis, rating of skill; 55
tests,
statistical; 23
Bender Visual-Motor Gestalt; 47
Wechsler Preschool Primary Scale of Intelligence; 47
Astrand-Ryhming; 89
of student improvement; 113
tonic neck reflex, effects upon children's grip strength; 157 treadmill exercise, age and physiological adjustment to; 175

U

ventilation meter output, continuous recording of; 243 vertigo, as motivation for physical activity; 148

W

Wechsler Preschool Primary Scale of Intelligence; 47
weightlifters, body image and self-concept of; 7 personality factor profiles; 142 women athletes, personality traits of; 409 woman gymnasts, college age, physical characteristics of; 226
